Volunteer position or internship: Web designer/developer

Position title: Web designer / developer
Location: Flexible – working from distance is possible, meetings required
Position type: Volunteer / Internship (unpaid)
Hours required: Flexible – approx. 8-16 hours per week

Applications accepted on a rolling basis, please apply as soon as possible.

About the role
We are looking for a motivated and creative volunteer or intern who has a firm understanding and excellent skills in web design/development, and is looking to build up his or her portfolio and use his or her skills for social good.

This is an opportunity to contribute to a radical transformation of our website and online presence, and create an engaging and interactive website that effectively tells the stories of Sydney Peace Prize recipients and their inspiring work.

You would create demonstrable change for the organization and the people it supports, and walk away with a healthy portfolio of digital content.

You can work from our office at the University of Sydney, but the role is flexible with hours and working location (occasional meetings will be required). We want to launch the website late 2016 or early 2017, and as such require a commitment of one or occasionally two days a week.

Who are we?
The Sydney Peace Foundation is a not-for-profit at the University of Sydney. We award the Sydney Peace Prize, Australia's international prize for peace. The prize brings inspiring stories of courage and dedication to peace, justice and human rights to the Australian and Sydney stage, educates the community on the work of the world's most effective peacemakers, and honours the remarkable people at the heart of these stories.

We rely on the great work of interns and volunteers, who are valued members of a small and highly motivated team. Your expertise is valued, so this this is a great opportunity to get hands-on experience, be involved in projects from start to finish, and see the results of your work which you can use for your own portfolio.

Who are you?
- You are organised, positive, committed, and serious about learning and making a difference, with initiative and a proactive attitude.
- You have passion for visually appealing and creative web design, a strong creative vision and willingness to bring your own ideas to the table
- You have clear written and verbal communication skills, proficiency in writing, editing and proofreading, and a meticulous attention to detail.
- You have experience in Web Design working with Adobe Creative Suite products InDesign, Photoshop, Illustrator and other Adobe programs)
- You are familiar with WordPress and Web development - CSS, HTML5, JavaScript
- You are able to work independently, but also flourish as a team player

We are happy to sign off on any accreditation/study requirements as well as provide a letter of recommendation and make ourselves available for reference phone calls.

How to apply
Are you looking for an opportunity to gain highly regarded work experience, and do your skills match what we're looking for? Then we would love to hear from you.

Email your resume and a cover letter (no more than one page) or examples of your work to peace.foundation@sydney.edu.au. Please include 'Web designer/developer' in the subject line.

Please specify how you think your skills meet the requirements of the role and how many days per week you would like to work.

You can find more information about the Foundation and the Sydney Peace Prize on www.sydneypeacefoundation.org.au.
