

2026 Partnership Proposal

Peace Week
November 2026

About Us

The Sydney Peace Foundation is a not-for-profit organisation which promotes peace with justice and awards the Sydney Peace Prize, Australia's only international prize for peace.

Founded in 1998, the Sydney Peace Foundation is dedicated to universal human rights, social and climate justice, and non-violent solutions to conflict. Through our advocacy, programs, and annual Sydney Peace Prize, we highlight the stories that inspire us to act for peace with justice.

Our 2026 Sydney Peace Prize Laureate: Jennifer Robinson

In 2026, we are honoured to award the Sydney Peace Prize to Jennifer Robinson, international human rights lawyer and barrister, for “her commitment to international law and her dedication to upholding and promoting human rights including free speech, press freedom, and gender and climate justice”.

She has fearlessly defended free speech and human rights in some of the most significant and high-profile legal cases worldwide. She has fought the persecution and secured the freedom of arbitrarily detained journalists, protesters, human rights defenders, and Australian citizens. She has represented Julian Assange and WikiLeaks since 2010, working to secure his release in 2024.

Events

We warmly invite organisations, institutions, and individuals to join us in 2026 as Partners in Peace and support our key events featuring our 2026 Sydney Peace Prize Laureate and other experts in the field of international law, press freedom, climate and gender justice.
